“From the Hearth”

St. Patrick’s Day is coming up this month with its wild and gregarious celebrations of leprechauns, pots of gold, green clovers, and corned beef and cabbage, and, of course, green beer. A strange way to celebrate a religious figure, if I do say so! There are some other ironies associated with the holiday. For example, although St. Patrick is best known as the patron saint of Ireland, he was really Scottish. And he was never officially canonized by the Roman Catholic Church and thus, he’s really not technically a saint. His story is certainly an interesting one, however.

He was born into a powerful family, but at age 16 or so, he was kidnapped by Irish raiders, taken to Ireland, and sold into slavery. While working as a shepherd boy for an Irish chieftain, he endured harsh conditions and found comfort in his religious faith. His faith was most experiential, not learned, by which I mean that he probably was not taught religion by his family – instead he had a series of direct and powerful experiences with what he came to understand as God.

One day when he was still a young man, a voice spoke to him and told him to escape, that a ship would be waiting for him to take him home. And even though he thought it would be wrong and even dangerous to follow that voice, he left, walked 200 miles to the coast, and found a ship that would take him back to Scotland.

After his return, he went to school, studied Christianity, and became a priest and later a bishop. He could have chosen never to return to Ireland, the land wherein he had been enslaved. He could have chosen never to forgive his captors and even to have responded to them with violence. Instead he heard another voice telling him to return and to try to change their hearts. His strategy was to work on changing the minds of the powerful clan chieftains first, beginning (some say) with his very own former master. It proved to be a good strategy for he did, in fact, change many hearts and minds during the course of his ministry.

Today, as a religious holiday, St. Patrick’s Day is a celebration of missionaries – of those who go forth into the world – sometimes at great personal cost – to share their faith gently and without force with others. He was often in danger, but he did not retaliate with violence. Instead, he prayed for God to protect him, and according to the old stories, God always did. The prayer most often associated with Patrick is sometimes called his “Breastplate,” in other words, his shield and protection from danger. I’ve included a segment of it below with all references to “Christ” changed to “Love,” which better suits our UU theology and which, I think, carries very much the same message.

*Spirit of Love, shield me today
Against wounding.
Love with me, Love before me, Love behind me,
Love in me, Love beneath me, Love above me,
Love on my right, Love on my left,
Love when I lie down, Love when I sit down,
Love in the heart of everyone who thinks of me,
Love in the mouth of everyone who speaks of me,
Love in the eye that sees me,
Love in the ear that hears me.
I arise today
Through the mighty strength
Of the Spirit of Love*

In the spirit of changing hearts and minds and in the spirit of Love, I plan to head to South Boston on the afternoon of March 17th to join the 3rd annual St. Patrick’s Day Peace Parade: the People’s Parade for Peace, Equality, Jobs, Environmental Stewardship, Social & Economic Justice. I invite you to join me that afternoon to Stand on the Side of Love with other people of faith, including (I hope!) many other Unitarian

Universalists, and to stand up for peace, justice and inclusion in our world. Please come! We will be gathering at 2:00 p.m. on near the corner of D Street and West Broadway in South Boston. The Peace Parade kicks off at 3:00. Have questions? Please ask!

May Love's wisdom guide you in all that you do this month!

Report from the Board

Wendy's Sabbatical

Under the church's agreement with Wendy, she is due for a sabbatical in the upcoming church year. This is Wendy's second sabbatical with us, and we are grateful for the careful planning that went into the last one, as we are able to take good advantage of that experience. While it is still early to have details, there are some things we can say today about this sabbatical.

Timing

Though this is subject to adjustment, we are currently working under the assumption that Wendy's sabbatical will run from December 1, 2013 through April 30, 2014.

Interim Professional Staffing

We'd like to contract with a minister to provide pastoral care and staff supervision while Wendy is away. Ideally this person would also preach once a month. We plan to begin interviews for this position later in the spring.

Worship Services

Between now and the end of the summer, we will need to identify and schedule ministers/guest speakers for the remaining 17 or so Sundays.

Communications

We'd like to produce and distribute a brochure by September, 2013 explaining all the details.

Accomplishing these tasks

The work on Wendy's sabbatical is being coordinated by a steering committee. The initial members of that committee are Betsy Williams, Charles Redinger, and MaryEllen Miller. We will soon be forming task groups. One group will focus on interviews for the Pastoral Care minister. Another will work with the Worship Committee and Melinda and focus on scheduling the Sunday morning guest ministers/speakers. A third task group will focus on communications with the congregation.

More information will be shared as it becomes available. If you are interested in helping to plan the Sabbatical or in helping out on any of the task groups identified above, please let me know.

The Last Piece of Cake

“What does flour taste like on its own? Yummy or yucky?”

“YUCKY!!!” shout the twelve children around the island in the kitchen.

“What about salt?”

“Yucky!” yell some. “Yummy!” yell others.

On a recent snowy Sunday morning, a dozen kids collaborated to bake Whacky Cake. While the cake baked, a parachute and a big box of corks became a gigantic human-powered “popcorn popper.” Later, each child sat on a wedge of the parachute with an adult companion and did a readers theater version of the “Little Red Hen” story, and considered alternate endings of the classic tale. A little dancing to some classic rock (“Let’s Work Together” by Canned Heat) and the cake was ready to eat. While the cake was being cut and served, each child answered a question about the theme of morning’s activities (“community”). After all kids and adults were served, a single piece of cake remained.

“Who gets the last piece?” they asked.

“I think we should take it to Wendy,” suggested one of the children, and the rest agreed.

One of the adults snapped a photo of the empty pan and Wendy’s piece of cake and emailed it to me. That afternoon, I shared the picture on my Facebook, and a friend in Sweden commented on it.

That afternoon I tweeted a different photo as part a 40-day photo sharing activity through Rethink Church, an online project of the United Methodist Church (<http://www.rethinkchurch.org/article/lenten-photo-day-challenge>). Participants are invited to post a photo in response to a single word provided by the Rethink Church project. Those photos are aggregated throughout the day, and I have been viewing the collected photos at the end of the day on Pinterest.

This is the first time I’ve participated in something like this, and I chose this online project for two reasons: 1) to engage in a Lenten practice and 2) to play with some online faith formation activities. As you may remember, Wendy called us to play in this interim year. As part of my Interim DRE work, I have attended two conferences on 21st century faith formation (<http://www.21stcenturyfaithformation.com/>). Wendy attended the 2nd workshop with me, and convinced me to join Twitter on the spot! The materials aim to help church leaders and staff utilize the internet to connect to and serve their faith communities, and I’ve been playing with how this might work for Religious Education at HUUC.

So far, my experience with the Photo a Day/Rethink Church/Lent project has been disappointing. Their website says “A picture is worth a thousand words,” but I am not sure what they’re saying. Or how, or why. Looking at the photos, each representing another person, I yearn to connect with the other participants, for without them, I am unable to discern the deeper narrative that binds the images together. I feel alone in the crowd.

The authors of Spiritual development in childhood and adolescence: Toward a field of inquiry, define spiritual development as “the process of growing the intrinsic human capacity for self-transcendence, in which the self is embedded in something greater than the self, including the sacred.” I find this definition helpful as I go about my work as Interim DRE. And it helps me articulate what I’d like to be able to do in the Lenten photo project: select five images and arrange them in a storyboard. Five images that, when arranged together, spark fresh meaning. I’d like to connect with the contributors of the photos and collaborate to tell a new story that transcends the individual contributions and opens new doorways into engagement with others.

This disappointing experience doesn’t mean I am giving up on technology. It just reinforces my long-standing belief about technology: that just because one can do something, doesn’t mean one should. It’s important to know why we choose what we choose to do, and this includes the experiences and opportunities we offer to the children and youth. In the remaining months of this year, I invite you to join with the Religious Education Team, the Youth Leadership Development Ministry Team and me, as we reflect on the purpose and goals of religious education at HUUC.

When the children asked who would get the last piece of cake, I suggested that it could be for the new person coming into our community who we haven't met yet (as in the small group ministry tradition of setting an empty chair that reminds participants that their group is not closed and there is always room for newcomers). Turns out this idea was too abstract for the kids, and their solution of giving it to Wendy made plenty of sense, and it was a concrete demonstration of their ability to consider something beyond their individual selves.

I checked the list of words for the Lenten sharing activity: "community" is not among them. Perhaps I'll post the picture of the empty pan and last piece of cake for "love."

Peace & blessings,

Social Action Committee Suggests
Feminine Hygiene Products and Diapers Needed for Loaves and Fishes

Many Loaves and Fishes are embarrassed to ask for feminine hygiene products and adult diapers but nevertheless are in need of them. Adding to the difficulty is that these items can be quite expensive so buying them on their own can be cost prohibitive. For Sunday, March 3th, please bring in tampons, pads, panty shields, adult diapers such as Depends, as well as larger sized diapers and pull-ups for children. You may leave your donations in the Loaves and Fishes baskets in the foyer of the sanctuary. Questions? Contact Risa Goldman at risajan@aol.com Thank you.

Facilities Rental Guide

A new section has been recently added to the church website-Facilities Rentals. (uuharvard.org) This section includes information for those considering use of our buildings for their event, class, function, or gathering. It includes details about the actual spaces, the guidelines for use, renter's responsibilities, as well as the process for renting. Our beautiful sanctuary and Fellowship Building are delightful spaces for rites of passage, family gatherings, and larger community events. Please consider suggesting our facilities to friends and colleagues looking for a special venue. *-Jeff & Deborah Levering,

Save Your Donelan's Stickers!

The Glean Team is coordinating an effort to collect Donelan's Supermarket stickers for Transitions at Devens, a transitional shelter for women and their children. The women of Transitions can exchange stickers for Cuisinart appliances such as coffee makers and blenders and will use them to outfit their kitchens with what they need most. If there are enough stickers, they will be used to make purchases for families who are moving out of Transitions and into their own homes. If you would like to donate the stickers you receive from shopping at Donelan's, there is a red envelope next to the mailboxes by the back offices of the church. This promotion runs through Feb 28th. Thanks for participating and happy collecting!

Update from the Worship Team -

This year the Worship Team is experimenting with a new model for worship which involves a designated "worship associate" each Sunday. The worship associate partners with Rev. Wendy to define the theme for a Sunday service then explores the topic through readings, reflections and music. Participation in the actual service may be a reading or two, a reflection, or even the sermon. Each member of the Worship Team will have the opportunity to work collaboratively with Rev. Wendy on a couple of Sunday services this spring. There have been three such services to date.

We want to create a list of people interested in occasionally being a reader for worship services. If this is something you would like to explore further, please be in touch with one of us!

Partner Church News

Latest note from Istvan in answer to some questions I posed: 1- Q.), what do you remember about the persecution and land taking off Ceaucescu ? A) I remember a lot of thinks. I grew up in that time, hard time to the people. For example, my parents land were taken by the govern , and they made constructions in our yard. 2-Q. what are your current projects/needs for the church A) we have a lot of thinks to do, we are planing to visit you in this year some time and may be can be important to save this money for our trip. If it can be possible. Especially this year we would like to make the gate in Magyarandrasfalva around the church. 3-Q I am curious to know Eniko's back ground and where you met A). When I became a minister, I were a bachelor. I were Kissoly-mos the neighbor village with St. Abraham. Eniko was a young teacher in that village. She borned there. I've met her in the village, and after three years we married together. Wonderful memories. We were younger.

The Glean Team Thanks You!

The Glean Team sought donations of jewelry and other accessories to sell at the HUUC indoor yard sale and you came through with incredible generosity! We were able to raise $626 which will go directly towards the fuel reimbursement program we started in the fall. The program was initiated to insure that all volunteers would be able to afford the cost of the fuel used to transport food from Roche Bros., farms, farmers markets and orchards to the pantries, soup kitchens and shelters we serve. The left-over donations of jewelry and other accessories that we were unable to sell have been passed on to WHEAT so that they may sell them in their thrift store. Also, a special thank you goes to Deb Levering and Lisa Oldham for lending us their beautiful jewelry display items. We think they made a big impact on the success of our table.

Thank you again. –Risa, Lisa, Cary & Ellen, Glean Team Co-Chairs.
